

NEW YORK HERALD, WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1863.—TRIPLE SHEET.

The Scheldt Dues.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

ANTWERP, May 12, 1863.

Since the publication of my last article upon the Scheldt dues, active measures have been in force to effectually accomplish the abolition of this obnoxious tax upon shipping visiting this port, which I am happy to say has been brought with success. This year, a decree was published announcing the importance of the treaty between Belgium and Holland was finally signed and concluded, thus opening the free navigation of this river which, once in force, Belgian will execute all the promises to the other powers, by reducing her local charges, which act will give advantages to Antwerp in the share of the foreign trade. The new law is in full operation; whereas it has hitherto unfortunately withheld shipping from it, on account of its universal reputation as an expensive port. The odds will now become reversed in favor of this port, and shipowners may with confidence abstain from the same, and compete upon the same scale of charges being considerably reduced. For instance, a vessel of one thousand tons, whose charges were formerly two hundred pounds sterling, will then pay only eighty pounds.
